SUPPORT FOR PEOPLE OF SOUTHERN AFRICA CELEBRATED

The ZANU official received a standing ovation and enthusiastic applause, when, at the conclusion of his well-received speech, he declared, "We want a people's government in Zimbabwe. We want a people's government in Namibia (South West Africa). We want a people's government in Oakland." (See next week's issue of THE BLACK PANTHER for the text of Comrade Mawere's speech.)

The May 21 affair, a Zimbabwean Mutambo, celebrated a year's culmination of concrete work done by a number of progressive Bay Area organizations to aid the Zimbabwean armed liberation struggle in its fight against the White settler regime of Rhodesia, headed by "Prime Minister" Ian Smith, as well as aid to other parts of southern Africa. During the past year, Bay Area Zimbabwe support groups and other organizations, including the Black Panther Party, sent 32 tons of clothes to Zimbabwean refugees in Mozambique and raised $5,000 toward health care in Mozambique.

The occasion was also a time for those active in the liberation struggles of southern Africa to bid farewell to Tirivafi Kangai, newly appointed ZANU deputy chief representative
