JONATHAN JACKSON LIVES

August 9, 1970
Real Date, 2 days A.D.

"We reckon all time in the future from the day of the man-child's death.

"Man-child, Black man-child with submachine gun in hand, he was free for a while. I guess that's more than most of us can expect.

"I want people to wonder at what forces created him, terrible, vindictive, cold, calm man-child, courage in one hand, the machine gun in the other, scourge of the unrighteous — 'an ox for the people to ride'!!! . . .

"I can't go any further, it would just be a love story about the baddest brother this world has had the privilege to meet, and it's just not popular or safe — to say I love him.

"Cold and calm though. 'All right, gentlemen, I'm taking over now.'

"Revolution."

George

With deepest respect, and in highest tribute to the supreme sacrifice of his life, THE BLACK PANTHER dedicates this issue of our newspaper to the indomitable revolutionary spirit of Jonathan Peter Jackson, the 17-year-old younger brother of Black Panther Party Field Marshal George Jackson, whose gallant bid for freedom on August 7, 1970, set a shining example, an act of love which, like a torch, casts away the threatening shadows of fear and oppression even in our darkest hours, warming our souls round the fires of freedom and liberation.

ALL POWER TO THE PEOPLE!
